LOCATION

St Faith's Plantation occupies a desirable position adjoining Old London Road in Mickleham, close to Box Hill, the Surrey Hills and the wider North Downs landscape. The woodland is bounded by the A24 to the west and neighbouring residential properties associated with the Fredley Estate to the north, whilst remaining readily accessible from both Dorking and Leatherhead.

DESCRIPTION

St Faith's Plantation extends to approximately 16.2 acres of attractive woodland on the edge of Mickleham. Formerly associated with St Faith's House, sections of the woodland were established following the disposal of the residential property in the 1990s. Today, the plantation contains a diverse mix of mature native and ornamental species, including Yew, Lime, Corsican Pine, Birch, Sycamore, Ash, Horse Chestnut and Wild Cherry. Established paths and open glades create an attractive and varied woodland setting. The property presents a rare opportunity to acquire a private woodland holding suitable for conservation, biodiversity enhancement, recreation, natural capital projects and long-term stewardship. The woodland benefits from three access points: a principal entrance from Old London Road and two further accesses from the road serving the neighbouring Fredley Estate properties, providing excellent accessibility and management flexibility.
